Korean Culture Seminar Series Korea Week 2011

Seminar 1: Secret of Korea's Growth from Historical Viewpoint

Date: March 24 Thursday / Time: 13:30-14:30 / Venue: B4302

Professor Tae-Gyun PARK
(Director, International Center for Korean Studies, Seoul National University)

Abstract

South Korea is famous for its rapid and effective economic growth and democratization among developing countries. The main question of this lecture is what triggered this great transition. I would like to analyze the question from two perspectives; one is from reciprocal relations between inside and outside, the other is from internal dynamics, in particular education. By examining two elements, I would like to pay attention to the localization and hybridity in Korean history and society.

Bio-Sketch

Professor Park received his BA, MA and Ph.D in Korean modern history from Seoul National University. Worked as a visiting fellow at Harvard-Yenching Institute. An Associate Professor in Korean Studies Program, Graduate School of International Studies, at Seoul National University and advisor for Korean Studies Department, Korea Foundation (2010-2012). Authored many books on Korean modern history and society.

Seminar 2: The Munhak Tongne Phenomenon: The Publication of Literary Fiction in South Korea Today

Date: March 24 Thursday / Time: 14:30-15:30 / Venue: B7603

Professor Bruce FULTON
(Department of Asian Studies, University of British Columbia, Invited Professor, University of Seoul, Korea)

Abstract

Some literary critics are bemoaning the "death of literature" in Korea, the future of Korean fiction would seem increasingly to lie in the hands of Munhak tongne (Literary Neighborhood publishing house in Seoul) writers such as Kim Young-ha. The lecture outlines some of the profound ways in which the literary culture of South Korea has changed since the mid-1990s, particularly with respect to the publication of literary fiction.

Bio-Sketch

Professor Fulton teaches Korean literature and literary translation in the Department of Asian Studies, University of British Columbia. For the year 2011 he is a Visiting Professor at the University of Seoul. His most recent translation (with Ju-Chan Fulton) is Lost Soul: Stories by Hwang Sunwon (Columbia University Press, 2009). He and Ju-Chan Fulton received the first Banff International Literary Translation Centre residency awarded for a translation from any Asian literature (2007), and the 2009 Daesan Translation Prize for There a Petal Silently Falls: Three Stories by Ch'oe Yun (Columbia University Press, 2008).

Seminar 3: Reflection on Cultural Nationalism

Date: March 25 Friday / Time: 11:30-12:30 / Venue: MMR

Professor Jin-Bae CHUNG
(Department of Chinese Language and Literature, Yonsei University, Korea)

Abstract

East Asian and Western ways of thinking are two heterogeneous forms of viewing the world, which can never be separated from the subject of epistemology. Current academic trends in the field of humanities such as postmodernism or totality issue are with no exception functioning based on the particular a priori form of positing the relationship between 'I' and the world. This lecture proposes the phantom-like aura of Korean culture by way of demonstrating its unsayability. After going through deconstructive process, we can genuinely appreciate the 'Other' culture with no bias.

Bio-Sketch

Professor Chung is graduated from Yonsei University with B.A. in 1984. Received Ph.D at UCLA with specialization in modern Chinese literature. Taught in the Department of Comparative Studies at SUNY-Stony Brook between 1992-94. Currently teaching in the Department of Chinese and Underwood International College at Yonsei University. Teaching and doing research on modern Chinese literature, traditional Chinese thoughts and cultural studies. Authored many books on Chinese literature and philosophy.
